Dunrovin's Youngsters

Ozzie's Golden Echo is a big name for what began as a tiny foal. Now known simply as "Oggy," Dunrovin's handsome young man now rivals in height others three times his age (in horse years, that's quite a feat).

Born in May, 2017, Oggy has quickly become a crowd favorite, as well he should be. A third-generation Dunrovin horse, Oggy follows in the "hoofsteps" of his grandmother, Annie, and his mother, Lady Lonza, as the "star" of the ranch.

On Thursdays, Oggy continues his on-camera training with Ranch Manager Kelli and Trainer Brandon Carpenter. He knows how cute he is, and he definitely gives them a run for their money.

Stay tuned!

Oggy's birth was a much-anticipated event, and it was live-streamed on our cameras. Mother and baby son are doing just fine. Although he is weaned from Lonza, Oggy and his mom definitely have a familial bond. She is still his protector from the herd, and he seeks his mom for advice on dealing with the other boys.

Growing Up At Dunrovin

Mystery came to Dunrovin via the very same Brandon Carpenter who trains Oggy. Mystery is 8 years old now, and he will begin his career as a guide horse for the ranch this Spring.

Meet Mystery during a broadcast on May 2nd Watch him being ridden as part of his training in Pony Club and Home School sessions by one of our instructors. It is important that he get used to being ridden in a group of his herd-mates.

Mystery has been out on several trail rides and has shown himself to be an intelligent, willing partner.

Later this summer, he will transition to being a guest mount. His progress will be fascinating to watch.

Each year, Dunrovin Ranch is home to the Equine Art Extravaganza (left). Mystery makes an excellent living “canvas,” with his lanky body and beautiful dark brown coat. He seems to enjoy the attention.
