

The People at Dunrovin

The Miller family has lived at Dunrovin since 1998. While Sterling's and SuzAnne's now grown sons, Jake and Mark, were born in Alaska, they spent most of their childhoods at Dunrovin Ranch and consider it home. They are both now professionals living on the west coast. Sterling is a retired wildlife biologist who spent most of his career studying bears in Alaska and beyond. SuzAnne, a retired biometrist, is now the driving force behind Dunrovin Ranch and its DaysAtDunrovin virtual front porch.

While SuzAnne's heart forever remains wedded to ranch life and her animals, recent medical issues have unfortunately limited her activities and kept her out of the saddle.

Tech genius James Wasem can build and fix almost anything from fences to complicated webcam broadcasting systems. At home with both computer hardware and software, James can make just about any machine or device work. Commonly seen working on a vertical lift to maintain the webcams, his serious detailed-oriented nature does not prevent him from horsing around while working. James is equally at home in front of or behind the webcams.

Technician-in-training Beth Cronin has stepped out of her usual role of caring for the horses, pastures, and guests at Dunrovin, to work with James to produce webcam broadcast sessions. Catching on quickly to the technology, Beth is clearly a woman of many talents. You'll be seeing Beth in front of the webcams this summer.

Dunrovin Ranch Depends on a Hard Working Staff

Nichole Crisp has a loving heart and skilled hands when it comes to animals and plants alike. She loves caring for Dunrovin's herd of horses. She works side by side with our veterinarian and farrier to monitor their health. Her calm demeanor, patience, and attention to details makes her an excellent horsewoman who is quickly learning natural horsemanship training from Dunrovin's expert trainer, Brandon Carpenter. She inherited her mother's love for flowers, which she puts to use at Dunrovin by organizing, planting, and maintaining the ranch's many flower barrels. Nichole is ever ready to assist any animal or person at Dunrovin. Her can-do attitude gives Nichole a flare for ADVENTURE!

Paula Goldberg is a stickler for details which makes her the best possible bookkeeper and administrator for Dunrovin. But this is only one of many sides to Paula's engaging personality. She is an artist, a mirth maker, an animal lover, a poet, and a social networker. Luckily, Paula has been bringing all of these different talents to Dunrovin for over a decade. During those years Paula has formed strong relationships with several Dunrovin equines, created, planned and presented Dunrovin's annual Equine Art Extravaganza, and has been a driving force behind many a Halloween party, birthday celebration, or opportunity for Dunrovin's Donkey DIVAS to strut their stuff. Dunrovin would be lost without Paula.
